Marriage of Miss Storms and Mr. Corley.

They Were Wedded Saturday Night in Hancock County.

[Hartford Inquirer.]
The final chapter in the Corley-Storms elopement romance has been written on Cupid's ledger. After a week of suspense, following the elopement of January 12, followed by the mysterious disappearance of the girl from the home of friends in this city, a disappearance that stirred Daviess, Hancock, Grayson and Ohio counties to wonder and roused most intense interest in all, where the families are well known, the escapade ended in the marriage of the determined young lovers at the home of the father of the groom near Roseville, Hancock county, Saturday afternoon. Consent of the father of the bride was obtained. Mrs. Mollie Storms, the girl's mother, is almost prostrated with grief and nervousness due to the long strain under which she bore up during the quest for her daughter.

One week ago last Thursday Dora Storms and Ed Corley, living with their parents in the Roseville neighborhood, about twelve miles from Hawesville, eloped to this city, armed with the written consent of the father of the girl, who is in Grayson county, and William Corley, whose adopted son Ed is.

Refusal of license was made here, owing to the fact that the parties lived out of the county. They went to Henderson, with the same result. Other efforts to secure a license failing, they remained in this county, on a farm a few miles from this city, until the girl was located by her mother, Mrs. Mollie Storms, who came here, with another daughter, Miss Cora Storms. With Patrolman H. M. Babbitt, a friend of the family, Mrs. Storms went to the farm and brought her daughter here.

Within a few hours the girl disappeared from the Babbitt home on Seventh street, and for two days not a trace was found indicating her whereabouts.

Late Saturday night telephone information reached the Babbitt home that the girl had arrived at the Corley home near Roseville during the day. Mr. Babbitt, Mrs. Storms and her two daughters, Miss Aurora, of Louisville, who came here to assist in the search, and Miss Cora, who resides at home, immediately secured a vehicle and started on a trip to Roseville, where they arrived about 6 o'clock Sunday morning.

Going to the Corley home they found the daughter and sister a wife. They had returned to the home neighborhood, and, as the fact that they were in their home county made it possible to secure a license, with the consent of the father of the girl, which she had, this was done. The ceremony was performed at 4 o'clock Saturday afternoon by a minister residing in the neighborhood. The bride declined to disclose her course after leaving the Babbitt home in this city, or at least had not told when Mr. Babbitt started on the return trip.

The scene of the meeting between the mother and daughter, and her sisters, was pathetic and touching in the extreme. After the awful doubts that had been their companions from the moment that Dora went away, the realization that she was alive and well caused a revulsion of feeling that was impossible to brook. With devout petition and a pean of thanks the reunited family knelt to lay down their burdens at the altar of the Great White Throne, and buried their sorrows and disappointments in the solace of supplication.

Suicide Near Deanfield.

On last Sunday morning Mrs. Jno. Taylor, who makes her home with her brother, Jas. Haynes, between Deanfield and Etnaville, remarked in the presence of the family that she preferred to be dead rather than alive. No attention was paid to her remark, and the rest of the family went to church. When they returned the horses were noticed to shy at some object in the pond. Examination proved the object to be the body of Mrs. Taylor. She was lying on the ice with her head through a hole that had been cut to allow the horses to drink.

A note was found at the house telling where her body could be found, and also where she wished to be buried.

No cause was given for her rash act, and none is known by the family. Her husband had been dead for more than a year, and it is supposed that pensive melancholy produced the state of mind which caused self-destruction.

WASHINGTON LETTER.

Able Discussion of the Consular Service Canteen Question.

[Special to The Republican.]
Washington, D. C. Jan. 21, 1905.

The message of President Roosevelt to Congress, suggesting means to promote foreign trade is in line with his well-known views regarding the consular service. The next four years will doubtless witness such a strengthening and bracing up in this service as has never before been known. The consular service of the United States is one of the weakest, if not the very weakest, branches of our civil service. The unfit men who have been sent abroad to represent us in a commercial and semi-diplomatic capacity are perhaps the worst ever sent by any government for that purpose. A majority of them have not known even how to speak the language of the country to which they were accredited. A consul sent to Cadiz, Spain, a few years ago, was not in the habit of wearing a collar in this country and considered it effeminate and un-American to wear one. He chewed tobacco incessantly and was one of the most slovenly slipshod men of his class. Doubtless there is much truth in Burns' lines that "a man's a man for a' that" but was not the man that was under consideration, it was the consul—the parson who represented us in an alien country among people who had been educated for ages to consider dress, bearing and the graces the end and aim of life and who measured and judged our country by our representative. This Consul to the old and aristocratic port of Cadiz was doubtless an extreme type, but we have many Consuls abroad who are better only in degree. They have been appointed without regard to fitness—but on account of kinship or because of some political service rendered. They have never traveled and it is rare that they know the language of the country to which they are sent, when it is considered that these Consuls of ours, have to compete with the debonair educated and polyglot consuls that England and Germany send abroad we have before us the reason why those countries take trade away from us in South America, Mexico, Cuba and other lands.

The President in his message recommends that six commercial attaches shall be sent to various foreign localities to promote trade. Each one is to receive a salary of $5,000 a year exclusive of traveling expenses, and it is estimated that the total expense of maintenance will be annually, $50,000.

There is a promise of important and far reaching improvement in the strengthening of our whole foreign service in the interest of trade and the gradual development of our foreign trade capacities. For many years agriculture in the United States has provided, through the demand from abroad for our surplus crops and more for foreign markets.

We do not pay our foreign ambassadors or ministers abroad as much as other countries, or as much as ministers from these countries accredited to the United States, but recent administrations have been taking advantage of the fact that these places are eagerly desired by rich men and Presidents Cleveland, McKinley and President Roosevelt have all favored the policy of giving our multi-millionaires a chance to die poor by appointing them ambassadors.

Mr. Whitelaw Reid has been in Washington for ten days, entertained by Capt. Cowles, whose wife is a sister of President Roosevelt. Capt. Cowles was formerly an attaché of the American embassy in London. Mr. Reid, it is well-known, is to be appointed an ambassador to England. He was formerly ambassador to France. He has already secured Brooke House, Lark Lane, London, as a residence. The property is a splendid one and owned by Lord Tweedmouth. It is the same house which Mr. Reid occupied for a month when he was accredited as special American envoy at the coronation of King Edward.

There is a merry war going on in Washington between the Women's Christian Temperance Union and the Women's Army and Navy League. Both organizations are advocating temperance, the former is opposed to the army canteen and the latter urging its reinstatement. The women of the Army and Navy League insist that the canteen is in the interest of sobriety, good morals, decency and health; that it furnishes an assembling point in camp or in barracks and pavements enlisted men wandering outside, dissipating and drinking themselves into the gutter, and indulging in the worst types of debauchery. The argument of the Women's Christian Temperance Union is well known and is mainly to the effect that the Government must in no sense be a saloon keeper, or hand out in any shape or form the vile hell-broth—whether it is beer, whiskey, brandy, wine, or cider.

William Britton, on trial at Lexington for the murder of James Cockrill, at Jackson, testified in his own behalf and denied all connection with the killing.

Johann Hoch has disappeared from Chicago, and the police are in possession of facts showing that he had not less than thirteen wives in ten years. It is believed that it has been discovered where he lived with seven others, and the existence of still more is suspected. A number of them died shortly after their marriage to Hoch, and besides charges of bigamy and swindling, it is believed that direct charges of murder can be preferred against him.

Court House Chat.

Once on a time, viz: January 1st, 1905, there was a man who resolved not to do so any more.

His friends congratulated him on his having chosen the better way, and his conscience spoke even more forcibly his pleasure.

As he had not been on speaking terms with his conscience for several years, the renewal of old associations was quite enjoyable.

Then his wife called him to the telephone and told him that her mother was at their house and had promised to stay with them until warm weather, and the man put up the transmitter with a sigh and began making fireproof pavements.

His name was John.

It is not commonly known, but true nevertheless, that those whose business or pleasure keep them around the Court House are the largest givers to charity in the county.

The yellow brick building on the public square is a magnet that finally attracts to itself all the tragedy, and all the pathos, in the lives of Ohio county's many thousand people, and the gentlemen who occupy it, are called upon more frequently than others to act the Good Samaritan.

If in truth, it is more blessed to give than to receive, then the Court House crowd must be members of the elect.

And speaking of characters, those who know him best say that H. F. Lowe, the obliging Assessor, is at heart a philanthropist, and prophesy that in a short while he will endow some college or donate a free library to the citizens. Recent happenings here make their forecast seem plausible.

"Is the best of life the gold
That our youth is said to hold?
Is the prize to be chosen
Or the story that is told?"

In one of the Addison's quaint fables he tells that a goddess agreed to relieve every man of his infirmities on condition that he would take up some cross borne by a fellow sufferer, and how the maimed, the halt and the blind hastened to cast away their deformities and how each found the new affliction unbearable, and how they longed for the old affliction which years of experience and habit had taught them to care for and almost conceal: How the cripple who had cast away a short limb and

Catarrh of the Head Which Affected Hearing Cured by Pe-ru-na.

Mr. J. Emile Tangney, No. 333 John St., Quebec, is Secretary of the Jacques Curling Club of Quebec, one of the leading sporting clubs in the city. Its members are composed of young men of the best families. He writes:

"Last winter I caught a severe cold which developed into a severe case of catarrh of the head, affecting my hearing especially. My eyes ran, my system seemed to be generally clogged up. I was advised by a club friend to try Pe-ru-na, and did so at once. To my delight I found a change set in for the better within three days, and in eight days I was entirely well."—J. Emile Tangney.

Mr. Adolph Koehler, President of the North Side Turners' Club, writes from Clark and Leland Ave., Chicago, Ill.:

"It is with pleasure that I endorse Peruna as a first-class medicine especially for catarrhal affections of the throat and lungs. I have used it with much benefit and several of my friends have been cured of catarrh entirely where Peruna was used."—Adolph Koehler.

"Nothing Better Than Pe-ru-na for Catarrhal Troubles." Says Congressman C. P. Dorr.

C. P. Dorr, Hotel Johnson, Washington, D. C., Ex-Congressman from West Virginia, writes:

"I can cheerfully recommend Peruna to anyone who wants a safe and permanent cure for catarrh. For throat, lung and catarrhal trouble there is nothing better than Peruna."—C. P. Dorr.

Colds Lead to Chronic Catarrh.
A common cold is acute catarrh, which quickly becomes chronic catarrh if allowed to remain.

Every cold snap leaves in its trail thousands of cases of catarrh, many of whom for want of an effective remedy, will suffer from this disease the rest of their lives.

Is there anything that can be done to prevent all this?

In the first place, Peruna used at the proper time will prevent taking cold. In the second place, Peruna will cure a cold in from two to five days.

Again, Peruna will cure catarrh quickly in the first stages, and finally Peruna will also cure chronic catarrh, if used properly and persistently.

Peruna kept in the house and properly used will therefore not only act as a safeguard against the ailments which result from sudden cold waves, but will also prove a sure remedy for this class of ailments.

If you do not derive prompt and satisfactory results from the use of Peruna, write at once to Dr. Hartman, giving a full statement of your case and he will be pleased to give you his valuable advice gratis.

Peruna can be purchased at any first-class drug store for $1.00 per bottle. Address Dr. Hartman, President of The Hartman Sanitarium, Columbus, O.

obtained a sound one at the cost of sight, was afraid to move either the old foot or the new, and how the man who was rid of the blindness at the cost of a short leg stumbled and fell more often than before.

And so nature, a wizard juggling with time, allures youth with the joys of maturity, and consoles old age with dreams of childhood until in sheer weariness we may say with another:

"Gladly I lived, and gladly die,
And I lay me down with a will—
Home is the sailor from over the sea,
And the hunter from the hill."

SPEAKER CANNON

Rules House Without Using Harsh Measures.

He and Reed, the Two Speakers of a Quarter Century--Their Methods Differ.

A rather tall and spare man, slight bent and wearing chinn whiskers tinged with gray, sits in the presiding officer's chair of the House, or moves around quietly among the members on the floor. He walks on tiptoe, and seldom speaks above a whisper. This man is Speaker Cannon, at present probably, the most potential figure in American politics, the denominating force of Congress, who makes and unmake laws almost at his will. The position of Speaker has always been one of great and commanding influence. Daniel Webster once said that even a mediocre man became great, in the eyes of the people, when he filled the chair.

REED AND CANNON.

During the last quarter of a century there have been two really notable speakers, Thomas B. Reed and Joseph G. Cannon. The others have all been good men, generally men of great ability, but they did not measure up to the standard of these distinguished exponents of American statesmanship. Reed swayed the House as the wind sways the grass in a field. He gave orders, and they were obeyed. The members who questioned him felt the sting of the party lash, and generally were left at home the next session. He was charged with being tyrannical, and he was, but his tyranny was of the kind which made for good laws and good government. Cannon is equally the boss, but less the tyrant. He controls in a different way, but controls none the less effectively.

Reed was feared, Cannon is loved. Young men idolize him. He is looked up to and revered. There is nothing of the New England aristocrat about Cannon. He is of the earth, earthly, and of the world, worldly. He speaks in homely phrases, and occasionally interjects an extra word into his speech to make it effective. He is full of anecdotes, and illustrates points by the telling of a pat story. He is in all ways a good American, with wholesome American ways.

The power of the Speaker to shape the ways of legislation has never been more forcefully shown than last week, when he swayed the House and turned what threatened to be an overwhelming sentiment in favor of an extra session and a revision of the tariff into an overwhelming sentiment the other way.

He did this in the face of the opposition of a number of leaders upon the Republican side. Moreover, he did it easily. A few of his closest friends were called into consultation. "There is no need of an extra session," said the Speaker. "No one is crying for tariff revision except a few who would be benefitted. It would disturb the business conditions of the country, and hard times would result. I defended the tariff wherever I went last fall, and everywhere I found people satisfied and contented. The mere suggestion of a tariff change is having its effect upon the country. Let us show that the House is not in sympathy with the move. Get busy."

His friends got busy, and in twenty-four hours a large majority of the Republican members had signed a protest against an extra session, and a revision of the Dingley bill until at least the next regular session of Congress.

Cannon may have been wrong or right in his contention that nothing should be done to lessen the duties of protection. People disagree as to this and disagree widely, but it illustrates his power and shows what a commanding figure he is. Reed could have done the same thing, but he would not have done it so quietly or so diplomatically. There would have been more injured feelings left behind. The whip would have been cracked and the sting of the lash felt.

Cannon is a determined man. He hates compromise as he hates deceit. When there was talk of his being nominated for the Vice Presidency last spring, and he could, perhaps, have had the place if he desired, he came out in the open and said he would not take the Honor.

"But they will force it upon you," said a friend.

"No, they will not," was the reply. "If I were nominated and elected I would refuse to go to Washington and serve. I know of no way I could be forced to do so. I will stay in Danville and practice law. I do not propose to be buried in the Senate. I want action."

In the last part of this sentence Cannon touched the keynote of his life. He wants and must have action. He has always had it, and always will as long as he lives. It is the reason that at 69 years of age he is as hale and hearty and chipper as a man of thirty generally is. He walks to the Capitol nearly every day from his home, more than two miles away, and walks with an elastic step which gives no sign of age. He can attend a banquet at night and be up at 6 the next morning, without showing the least sign of fatigue.

Mr. Cannon has been elected for another term. He will be Speaker as long as he remains in the House and the Republicans are in the majority. It would be poor policy for any member to oppose him.

A STORY BY LINCOLN.

Courting Experience Applied to Office-Seekers By the Great President.

[Youth's Companion.]

This story of Lincoln seems to be a new one. It was related at an old settlers' meeting at Mount Pleasant, Ia., by the late Senator James Harlan, of Iowa, who served as Secretary of the Interior under Mr. Lincoln, and whose daughter, Mary, is the wife of Robert Lincoln, ex-Secretary of War, and now a leading lawyer and capitalist of Chicago.

Some politicians had called on President Lincoln to urge the appointment of some of their friends to positions in a certain department. By way of refusal the President told the following story:

"Gentlemen, the conditions in that department put me in mind of time that a young friend and myself tried to court the two daughters of a peppy widow living near our home. The old lady kept a lot of hounds.

"We had not been in the house long before one of the hounds came into the room and lay down by the fire. In a little while another one came to the door. He didn't get in, for the old lady gave him a kick, saying:

"Get out of here. There's too many dogs in here now!"

"We concluded to court some other girls."

JAPANESE RELIGION.

They Worship Spirits and Defy Shades of The Dead.

The touching address which Admiral Togo delivered at Tokio the other day to the spirits of the officers and men who were killed while fighting under him in the Port Arthur fleet illustrates Shintoism, the Japanese national religion. Many theologians insist that it is not a religion because there is no theology in it; that it is only a manifestation of certain superstitions in which the entire Japanese nation believes, but as Hearn has said, it is "the soul of the race."

All Japanese are spiritualists, so to speak, and they are taught that the spirits of the dead, in a large measure control the actions of the living. They do not believe in ghosts; they do not have mediums of communication with their dead, and they do not receive messages from the other world. But this world is full of friendly, invisible beings, encouraging, protecting and comforting them, and the landscape is dotted with shrines that have been erected for the purpose of worshiping good and influential men.

If a Japanese is going to war he prays before the shrine of some great soldier; if he is preparing for a journey he goes to the shrine of a great traveler; if he is a party to a lawsuit he prays for the aid and guidance of some famous jurist; before he lays out his garden he prays to the spirit of some great landscape architect, and so on in every duty, pleasure and labor of life he consults the spirit of his ancestors and those of otherwise a good man, and, without expecting any direct answer, has faith that they will give him their encouragement, protect him from errors and lead him in the right way. This, the theologians say, is not religion; but it is a practical, actual, every day thing and illustrates the Japanese character more strongly than any other act or word.

There is a striking contrast between the Japanese and Hindus in this respect. The latter are surrounded by spirits in a similar manner and their fate is controlled in a similar way, but the gods of the Hindu are wicked, cruel vindictive and malicious, and in his prayers and sacrifices he does not ask for light or aid, for he has been taught that they will not give it to him. He begs for mercy; he makes sacrifices and brings offerings from his scanty store in the hope of making the gods good natured, and in that way perhaps his misery may be lessened, his load lightened and impending misfortunes averted. On the other hand, the Japanese gods are all kind and generous and helpful, and the faith of the people never fails.

The Diamond Cure.

The latest news from Paris is, that they have discovered a diamond cure for consumption. It you tear consumption or pneumonia, it will, be best for you to take that great remedy mentioned by W. T. McGee, of Vanleer, Tenn. "I had a cough, for fourteen years. Nothing helped me, until I took Dr. King's New Discovery for Consumption, Coughs and Colds, which gave instant relief, and effected a permanent cure." Unequaled quick cure, for Throat and Lung troubles. At Z. Wayne Griffin and Bro's drug store; price 50c and $1.00, guaranteed. Trial bottle free.

To Tell a Horse's Age.

Nearly everyone can tell a very old horse from a very young one. Frequently one sees a sleek, fat high lifted animal passing from general appearance for a five or six year old that is fully twice as old.

The lower front teeth, if healthy and natural, are practically an accurate guide, says the Baltimore Sun. A yearling has very short teeth, with deep cups in the center, the two end ones being shorter than the others. A two-year-old has short teeth, with comparatively shallow cups.

A three-year-old has two long teeth in the center, with two short or "colt" teeth on either side.

A four-year-old four long teeth, with one short one on either side.

A five-year-old has six long teeth, with deep cups in centers.

A six-year-old has yellow cups in

A RACE FOR LIFE.

Spurring his jaded horse to renewed efforts when the animal should be refreshed with proper food and rest, is about as sensible as prescribing nerve tonics, alcoholic compounds, coca mixtures and cocktails which only spur on the already weakened nervous system. Neither does it do to put the nerves to sleep with narcotics. When you feel worn-out, broken down, jaded, and feel the effects of brain tire as well as nerve weakness, sleeplessness and fatigue, take Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery, a tonic which will do you lasting good, build you up, increase your appetite and strength and improve the condition of the blood. When the blood is impoverished the nerves feel the effect. Nervousness in nine cases out of ten is the "cry of the starved nerves for food." Feed the nerves on rich blood and all nervous manifestations will cease.

"I have been suffering for about eight years," writes Mrs. H. Pierce, of Millington, Ky. "I have had several doctors to treat me—some for female weakness and others for stomach trouble, but received no relief. When I wrote you for advice I was hardly able to work, and you advised me what to do. I took nine bottles, five of 'Golden Medical Discovery,' four of 'Favorite Prescription,' also two vials of the 'Pellets.' Dr. Pierce's medicines will do all that you claim for them."

To gain knowledge of your own body—in sickness and health—send for the People's Common Sense Medical Adviser. A book of 1008 pages. Send 21 cents in stamps for paper-covered, or 31 stamps for cloth-bound copy. Address Dr. R. V. Pierce, 663 Main Street, Buffalo, N. Y.

the two center teeth.

A seven-year-old has the center teeth worn nearly smooth, cups of second pair shallow.

An eight-year-old has the second pair worn nearly smooth.

A ten-year-old is commonly spoken of as a "smooth mouthed" horse—i. e., no cups. As the animal grows older the teeth become worn in proportion and the corners of the end teeth become rounded.

To tell the age with any degree of accuracy beyond twelve requires much experience and the examination of many sets of teeth.

Bent Her Double.

"I knew no one, for four weeks, when I was sick with typhoid and kidney trouble," writes Mrs. Annie Hunter, of Pittsburg, Pa., "and when I got better, although I had one of the best doctors I could get, I was bent double, and had to rest my hands on my knees when I walked. From this terrible affliction I was rescued by Electric Bitters, which restored my health and strength, and now I can walk as straight as ever. They are simply wonderful." Guaranteed to cure stomach, liver and kidney disorders; at Z. Wayne Griffin & Bro's drug store; price 50c. m

Trivial Causes of Great Wars.

The immediate cause of the great wars of history has often been a surprisingly trivial accident. It is said incidentally that no two wars have ever been brought about in exactly the same way. Mere jests have often caused dreadful wars. In the time of William the Conqueror, for instance, it was a jest pure and simple that brought about the war between England and France and ultimately cost the great William his life. One day his contemporary, Philip of France, delicately remarked at dinner that William was "like a file of beef on castors and ought to be exhibited at a price monarch show." William heard of this and in a furious rage ordered his troops to invade at once. This was done, and a war commenced, which ended in the English King being thrown from his horse and killed while superintending the siege of Mantes. A more recent case is told of Frederick the Great, who nearly caused a war with England by referring to King George as "a bloated ox."

In a recent war between the army of Ecuador and that of a neighboring State considerable damage had been done before any explanations were forthcoming. Then it transpired that the rival armies had been "naivevering" on the frontier rather too near each other, and could not resist the temptation to try conclusions. The only recent case in Europe of a formal declaration of war made before actual operations were begun was that of the Franco-Prussian War in 1870. The first intimations of the Boers in their war came out of the muzzles of their Mausers.

Lard and Peanuts.

At the beginning of the past summer a certain well-known literary woman in the West repaired to the shores of one of the lakes of Michigan, there to prepare her cottage for occupancy during the heated term. Before going she had arranged with her husband to cause a lot of household goods to be packed and forwarded by steamer.

It appeared that for some reason the shipment was delayed, and that the lady was obliged to write to her husband inquiring with reference to the delay. In conclusion, she had appended to her letter a postscript, reading, "Please telegraph me when the goods shall have been shipped."

Pursuant to instructions, the husband personally supervised the packing of the various effects needed for the cottage in Michigan, even going down to the dock to see that they were duly conveyed on board the steamer. Moreover, as requested by his wife, he telegraphed what he had done. "Lard and peanuts on board, wired he; 'will arrive to-morrow morning."

When his wife received the telegram she read:

"Lard and peanuts on board. Will arrive to-morrow morning."

We began using Chamberlain's Cough Remedy in 1887, and finding it such a reliable remedy for colds and croup, we have never been without it in the house since that time. We have five children and have given it to all of them with good results. One good feature of this remedy is that it is not disagreeable to take and our babies really like it. Another is that it is not dangerous, and there is no risk from giving an overdose. I congratulate you upon the success of your remedy." For sale by all druggists.

THE REAL PROBLEM.

How to Secure the Employment of American Citizens at Living Wages.

The position of the United States among nations is unique. We have no direct taxes, yet we spend more money than any other nation in times of peace and pay our veterans of the Civil War quite as much money in the aggregate, through our pension list, as serves to maintain Germany's big standing army. With our army and navy to maintain and our pension list to meet, we have only to apply the internal revenue receipts on liquors and tobacco and the trick is done. Notwithstanding that easy financial problem, Democratic papers and speakers keep up a howl about the burden of taxation, and not a writer or speaker ever paid a direct tax except in war times, and then through the internal revenue system. It is from the same source that all the howl about the iniquities of the Protective Tariff comes. High Tariff they call high taxation, and yet it makes but little difference how high the Tariff may be on goods manufactured in this country, as the price is regulated not by the Tariff schedules but by business competition.

Let any kind of manufacture pay high profits and mills will go up to make goods in competition as fast as the bricklayers and carpenters can do work. High Tariff schedules will keep out foreign goods in competition with goods made in this country, and it is a blessed thing that such is the case, or down would go the prices paid mill operatives and others, low enough now as conditions are. The only way to cheapen goods made here is by reducing wages, and the only way to keep wages where they are is to put up the bars against the same goods made by the cheap labor of Europe.

High Tariff or low Tariff, what we seek here is employment of American citizens at living wages. By living wages one thing is meant in this country and quite another abroad. Here men and women who work daily to earn a living are not to be content with just enough coarse food to keep them alive, with poor clothing just sufficient to cover their bodies, nor homes that are not comfortable, nor decent and not conducive to morality. That is the whole story. More revenue through the customs could certainly be raised with a low Tariff, but we would pay with the liver and morals of our working people for every dollar that came that way.

When the day comes that working men and women are content to live as do European people of the same employment, we shall need no Protective Tariff, but we would have other problems to solve that Americans never wish to handle.

Mrs. W. H. Layha, of 1001 Agnes Ave., Kansas City, Mo., has for several years been troubled with severe hoarseness and at times a hard cough, which she says: "Would keep me in doors for days. I was prescribed for by physicians with no noticeable results. A friend gave me part of a bottle of Chamberlain's Cough Remedy with instructions to closely follow the directions and I wish to state that after the first day I could notice a decided change for the better, and at this time after using it for two weeks, have no hesitation in saying I realize that I am entirely cured." This remedy is for sale by all druggists.

To Prevent Freezing.

During the winter season, when hanging out clothes is so difficult, try putting a handful of salt in the last rinsing water, and the clothes will not freeze or stiffen until after they are hung on the line; indeed, it is possible even to change the position of a lineful of clothes necessary, before they freeze, and, best of all, if hung out in the sun they will have commenced to dry before the freezing begins; this saves the wear and tear, for nothing is so hard upon linen as this freezing and flapping in the wind; they are also easier to remove from the line; have a pair of white gloves for hanging out clothes the white wool sort that are worn so much now, and these, with the salt water rinsing, will rob hanging out clothes in the winter of its terrors. Always hang table linen in good shape, for it is almost impossible to iron out wrinkles which dry in it. Hang both tablecloths and sheets across the line evenly, with the weight on the warp threads, ends down, the warp is stronger than the woof, and if hung habitually lengthwise and good will split across the folds. Iron down the middle, folding them exactly opposite from the way they hung on the line, and they will wear longer.

If clothes have become discolored through improper washing, try for a few wash days the plan of scalding them just before putting them into the last rinse water; this will whiten them beautifully, although it is more trouble.

Never take the clothes from the line damp and fold down to iron; let them get quite dry, and then bring them in, folding them properly when they are taken from the line, as this will save much ironing out of wrinkles.

"The poppy is another dangerous flower. A young woman of a nervous temperament if she lingers among a bed of poppies, will grow drowsy, the same as if she had smoked a pipe or two of opium. In Asia Minor, where the opium manufacturers cultivate vast fields of poppies, tourists inspecting the beautiful flowers often become altogether incapacitated. They get so sleepy they can hardly talk. They reel in their gait. In some cases they have to be put to bed."

Indian Mothers and Dolls.

When an Indian girl dies her mother often substitutes a doll for her lost little one. She fills the empty cradle with feathers, arranged in the form of the child, and carries this around with her wherever she goes, talking to it and caressing it as she would her loving child.

If she does not do this she ties in a tight bundle the toys, clothes and armlets which belongs to her little one and, fastening this to the cradle board, carries it as she had formerly done her child. The Ojibways call these "unlucky dolls," because they represent the dead.

The reason the Indian mother car-

Women as Well as Men Are Made Miserable by Kidney Trouble.

Kidney trouble preys upon the mind, discourages and lessens ambition; beauty, vigor and cheerfulness soon disappear when the kidneys are out of order or diseased.

Kidney trouble has become so prevalent that it is not uncommon for a child to be born afflicted with weak kidneys. If the child urinates too often, if the urine scalds the flesh or if, when the child reaches an age when it should be able to control the passage, it is yet afflicted with bed-wetting, depend upon it, the cause of the difficulty is kidney trouble, and the first step should be towards the treatment of these important organs. This unpleasant trouble is due to a diseased condition of the kidneys and bladder and not to a fault as most people suppose.

Women as well as men are made miserable with kidney and bladder trouble, and both need the same great remedy. The mild and the immediate effect of Swamp-Root is soon realized. It is sold by druggists, in fifty-cent and one dollar sizes. Think the Czar One-Eared.
The uneducated peasants in the Cherson province of Russia have an extraordinary belief that the Czar has only one ear. They are confirmed in their belief by pictures and photographs of the Czar showing a side face view, and naturally exhibiting only one ear. They account for the absence of the other in the following manner:

Some time ago a deputation from their province waited upon the Czar, and in the course of the meeting the Czar is said to have stated that all Russian lands would be divided equally among the peasants of the various districts.

To this one of the deputation boldly said:

"As sure as you cannot see your own ears you will not divide the land."

The Czar's reply to this was to cut off one of his (the Czar's) ears, which he placed upon the table, remarking as he did so:

"As surely as I now see my ear I will divide the land."

To this day the Cherson peasants firmly believe that he has only one ear, and unless the Czar visits them in person and proves to them by optical demonstration that he possesses the correct number this extraordinary belief will not be shaken.

FORGOT THE SCENE.

A Stage Incident Involving Henry Irving and Mrs. Maude.

Mrs. Alex-Tweedie once asked Mrs. Cyril Maude, the noted English actress, if she had ever been placed in an awkward predicament on the stage and records Mrs. Maude's answer in her book, "Behind the Footlights."

"I always remember one occasion," she replied, "tragedy at the time, but a comedy now perhaps. I was acting with Henry Irving in the United States when I was about eighteen or nineteen and felt very proud of the honor. We reached Chicago, 'Louis XI' was the play. In one act, I think it was the second, I went in as usual and did my part. Having finished, as I thought, I went to my room and began to wash my hands. It was a cold night, and my lovely white hands, robbed of their paint, were blue. The mixture was well off when the call boy shouted my name. Thinking he was having a joke, I said: 'All right, I'm here.'"

"But Mr. Irving is waiting for you."

"Waiting for me? Why, the act isn't half over."

"Come, Miss Emery, come quick!" gasped the boy, pushing open the door. "Mr. Irving's on the stage and waiting for you."

"Horror! In a flash I remembered I had two small scenes as Marie in that act and usually waited in the wing. Had I could I have forgotten the second one."

"With wet, red hands; dry, white arms; my dress not properly fastened at the back, towel in hand, along the passage I flew. On the stage was poor Mr. Irving, walking about, talking—I know not what. On I rushed, said my lines, gave him my lobster colored wet hand to kiss—a pretty contrast to my ashen cheeks, and when the curtain fell I dissolved in tears."

"Mr. Irving sent for me to his room. In fear and trembling I went."

"This was terrible," he said. "How did it happen?"

"I forgot. I forgot. Why I know not, but I forgot," I said, and my tears flowed again. He patted me on the back.

"Never mind," he said kindly, "but please don't let it occur again."

Millinery Botany.

Miss Johnson was an excellent teacher, but her taste in dress, especially headdress, was so peculiar that even her adoring pupils could not fail to notice it. The verdure which appeared upon Miss Johnson's hat one season was so gaudy that several wondering comments were made by the boys.

"I'm going to ask her what that green stuff is," said one boy valiantly in spite of the vigorous objections of his companions. "She won't mind, and next nature study class I'm going to ask her and see who's right."

So, red in the face, but stubborn, he rose at the end of a lesson on wayside flowers in response to Miss Johnson's general request for any questions which might have come up since the last lesson.

"I'd like to know about that green stuff on your hat," he said bluntly. "John Aken, he says it's beach grass, but I say it's onion sprouts."

He Knew His Russians.

Czar Nicholas I. had some trouble with his back, and his physician ordered massage treatment. But Nicholas declared himself unable to find a single man whom he dared trust for the simple operation. He sent to Frederick William IV. of Prussia, asking that a few noncommissioned officers of the Prussian guards might be allowed to wait upon him. The application was granted, and the officers acted as masseurs and returned to Berlin laden with rich presents. "I know my Russians," Nicholas told them. "So long as I can look them in the face everything is well, but I will not risk letting them work behind my back."

A Slight Change.

Homagun—And Jingle! What's become of him? There was a big hearted, generous fellow.

Holmes—Oh, he's married now, and all that's changed.

Homagun—Why, when I knew him only a few years ago he could always be depended upon to share his last dollar with you.

Holmes—Well, now you can depend upon him to share your last dollar with him. — Philadelphia Press.

FAIRY STORIES.

Their Origin is Ancient and Antedates Recorded History.

Had one leisure, it would be worth while to attempt to trace to their very fountain head some of the nursery rhymes and jingles and fairy stories which have delighted generations of children.

The antiquity of what is now a mere nursery story is great and by Disraeli the elder has been traced back to the time when there was no current literature whatever for the lower classes, owing to the simple fact that not one could read, and the brilliant exploits of Gay of Warwick, Sir Bevis of Hampton and other mighty men were bandied from mouth to mouth. Songs were made about them, and tales were sung or quoted in one hamlet after another among perfectly illiterate people, remember, who repeated them to their children, to be repeated, with variations and additions, to their children till "Jack the Giant Killer" became a nursery tale and will probably never die.

The tale of "Whittington and His Cat" had its origin in Genoa in 1483 and claimed to be the actual life history of a well known Genoese. "Puss In Boots" also came from Genoa about the same time, and both originally came from Persia. "Bluebeard" is supposed to have been drawn from our much divorced Henry VIII., but the same tale now holds good in France, Germany and Denmark, as it did a few centuries before the marrying monarch was born.

The little hunchback of the "Arabian Nights" had his counterpart in Italian in the "Gesta Romanorum" and in every country under the sun.

"Ladybird, Fly Away Home," is said by the antiquary Weber to be one of the earliest known German nursery songs.

The beautiful story of Llewellyn's greyhound Gelert, over whose grave at Beth Gelert many of us have heaved a sympathetic sigh, is discovered by Sir William Jones to be a very old Persian tradition and has even given rise to a proverb in that country, "As repentant as the man who killed his greyhound."

It is impossible now to trace the original source whence came "Little Red Riding Hood" and "Cinderella," though the latter is probably of eastern origin, but it exists unmodified in very early French, German and Danish.

One would think that tales which have stood the test of 1,400 years and will never drop out of our currency must have plenty of "backbone" in them to survive so long.—London Standard.

Voice Strange to Owner.

That a man does not hear his own voice as all the rest of the world hears it is shown by an interesting experiment described by Dr. L. L. Lloy in La Nature of Paris. Says this writer: "If a person records on a phonograph a few sentences pronounced by himself, together with others by his friends and causes the machine to reproduce these after a brief period, it generally happens that he easily recognizes his friends' voices, but not his own. On the other hand, the friends recognize his voice perfectly. This singular fact proves that every one hears his own voice differently from others."

No More Stomach Troubles.

All stomach trouble is removed by the use of Kodol Dyspepsia Cure. It gives the stomach perfect rest by digesting what you eat without the stomach's aid. The food builds up the body, the rest restores the stomach to health. You don't have to diet yourself when taking Kodol Dyspepsia Cure. J. D. Ershine, of Allentown, Mich., says, "I suffered heartburn and stomach trouble for some time. My sister-in-law has had the same trouble and was not able to eat for six weeks. She lived entirely on warm water. After taking two bottles of Kodol Dyspepsia Cure she was entirely cured. She now eats heartily and is in good health. I am glad to say Kodol gave me instant relief." Sold by Z. Wayne Griffin & Bro.

JAPANESE LANGUAGE.

Instead of Letters Characters Are Used to Represent Its Words.

The Japanese, like the Chinese, have no alphabet in the ordinary sense, every word in their written language being represented by a separate character. In telegraphing in these languages, therefore, about 10,000 words are selected, and figures ranging from 1 up to 9,999 are allotted to each word. Each word of a message to be transmitted by telegraph in these languages is first given its proper number by the telegraph clerk, by means of a dictionary which has been prepared under the authority of the government.

Ayer's Pills

BUCKINGHAM'S DYE
FIFTY CENTS PER DOZ. OF BOTTLES OF B. B. B. & CO., MANUFACTURERS.

These numbers are then transmitted by the Morse alphabet, and when received the message is translated back into the Chinese or Japanese characters by reference to a corresponding dictionary. This method of telegraphing is of course, cumbersome, but it could be employed by those nations as the equivalent of a cypher code in warfare, with very little probability of any foreign nation deciphering it. For prompt telegraphic communication, the English language is probably used by the Japanese. For the reasons stated, however, it is obvious that the telephone must be a great boon to nations possessing such extensive alphabets since by this system each word is transmitted as it is spoken.

Kennedy's Laxative Honey and Tar
Cures all Coughs, and expels Colds from the system by gently moving the bowels.

Two Dyspeptics

If you are too fat it is because your food turns to fat instead of muscle—strength. If you are too lean the fat producing foods that you eat are not properly digested and assimilated.

Lean, thin, stringy people do not have enough Pepsin in the stomach, while fat people have too much Pepsin and not enough Pancreatic.

Kodol Dyspepsia Cure

contains all the digestive juices that are found in a healthy stomach, and in exactly those proportions necessary to enable the stomach and digestive organs to digest and assimilate all foods that may be eaten. Kodol is not only a perfect digestant, but it is a reconstructive, tissue building tonic as well. Kodol cures indigestion, Dyspepsia, Sour Stomach, Heartburn, Palpitation of the Heart and Constipation. You will like it.

Digests What You Eat

Rests the stomach, rebuilds the tissues and gives firm flesh.

HEFLIN.

Jan. 22.—As I haven't seen anything in your valuable paper concerning the Heflin lodge of the A. S. of E., and being very much interested in the work, I will try and give you a little conception of what we are doing.

On the 7th of October Mr. Wilbur Stevens, the County Organizer, came to our school house and made an interesting appeal to the farmers of this locality in regard to their present condition financially, after which he organized a lodge of ten members, of which T. M. Tanner was elected President and S. A. Woodward Secretary. Since the organization the membership has increased rapidly, having at present thirty-three members enrolled, with ten honorary members. The lodge met, and after some deliberation deemed it best to elect a committee of two members, and the owner of the tobacco constituting the third committeeman, and after inspecting the tobacco very closely in the district, and finding it to be a very fine crop, it was decided it was all worth $8.00 per hundred from the ground up, and Burley $12.00 per hundred from the ground up, consisting of 50,000 or 60,000 pounds of the best grade of tobacco that has been produced in this section for a long time. One man was appointed by the lodge as agent to sell the entire crop at the above named price. Our lodge met the 21st, at 10 o'clock a. m., with quite a large attendance. We were highly honored by the presence of Hon. Wilbur Stevens, our County

Organizer, and also quite a number of our lady friends. We enjoyed their presence very much, and we extend to them and Mr. Stevens a cordial invitation to visit us again in the near future. Mr. Stevens made a splendid talk which was enjoyed by all.

With best wishes for the A. S. of E. and your valuable paper, I will close. A MEMBER.
